

A dramatic, close-up photograph of a lizard's head, likely a gecko or similar night-active creature. The lizard's skin is textured with deep, dark wrinkles and ridges. Its most striking feature is a pair of large, luminous red eyes that glow intensely in the dark, casting a warm, fiery light that highlights the scales around them. The rest of the lizard's body and the background are shrouded in deep shadow, creating a mysterious and intense atmosphere.
